ALL DETAILS WATCHED

District Attorney's Office in Los Angeles Going Into Minute Particulars of the Case.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Indianapolis, Dec. 8.—"There is not a word of truth in reports of friction between Samuel Gompers or other officials of the American Federation of Labor and myself," said Frank M. Ryan, president of the international association of bridge and structural iron workers who arrived in this city from Washington.

Asked why he had not signed the statement issued by the federation of labor officials in denunciation of the McNamara case after a conference in Washington yesterday he replied, "I took very little part in the conference because of the press of other business. I will not add to my first statement in regard to the outcome of the McNamara case."

Closely Watched. Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 8.—Members in the district attorney's office are discussing the fact that Frank M. Ryan, president of the American Federation of Labor and Structural Iron Workers, did not sign the statement of the committee of the American Federation of Labor made yesterday in Washington denouncing the McNamara brothers.

Ryan interesting. It was but one of number of instances where the district attorney's office had manifested a nonchalant interest in what Ryan says and where he goes. An head of the organization of which John J. McNamara was secretary and treasurer it was said, it was not unlikely he would be subpoenaed to appear as a witness before the federal grand jury.

Whereabouts Unknown. Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 8.—Neither Frank M. Ryan, president of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, nor J. E. Hockin, secretary, could be found at the headquarters of the national association early today. Inquirers were told by clerks that it was expected both Mr. Ryan and Mr. Hockin would be in the office before night but it was not known where either was.

TO EDUCATE PEOPLE IN STATE FINANCES

Experts Soon To Be Appointed By State Board of Public Affairs To Give People Idea of Government Cost.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Dec. 8.—To permit the people of the state to gain accurate and specific knowledge of the finances of the state or any branch of the state government will be the object of an exhaustive study of fiscal conditions by experts soon to be appointed by the state board of public affairs. The consideration of this broad plan engaged the board at a long afternoon session yesterday.

A Budget Exhibit. The board's purpose is based upon the conviction that the people of Wisconsin should know about the finances of their state—not for this or the coming year alone, but in future decades. The plan contemplates that they should know just what it costs to run each department or state institution for a year, or quarter, or over a period of years, that they should know what part of the tax they pay for state purposes, what part for county, town, or district school purposes, and that they should be informed just how much of the state revenue is spent for running expenses, how much for permanent improvements, and how much for capital outlay. Under this system the people may learn how expenditures in this state compare with the expenditures of other states, and what the federal government costs itself.

In brief, the results would be in the nature of a budget exhibit. The compilation of all this information will be made with the idea of giving the people a clear statement of the state finances in a form that the layman can easily understand. This study, it is proposed, will be well started by January 1, 1912.

In the task of centralizing all state accounting, a man of expert ability will be engaged to act in conjunction with the state tax commission. This and other experts are soon to be appointed.

In order to determine just what the gain or loss to the state by prison contract labor will be, the board decided to cooperate with the state board of control in an investigation of such contracts, and upon the result of this inquiry will depend the renewal of the present contract at the state prison.

M'LAY'S CLYDES ARE WINNERS OF PRIZES

Five Out of Twelve Head Exhibited at Chicago Show Carried off Honors—Rock County Center of Industry

McLay's Clydesdales carried off the honors at the big International Stock Show at Chicago, this week, five out of the twelve animals exhibited by the local breeders being awarded the coveted ribbons. These huge but gentle favorites of the British, held the attention of thousands of the horsemen and farmers at the big show and the McLays incidentally informed the judges where the choice animals of the breed are located in the United States.

A first prize was given on a filly foal, a first on a yearling filly, a first and third on a two year old filly, and a fourth ribbon on a three year old filly. The stallions are likewise bringing firsts.

JAMES BUCHANAN IS MUCH TALKED ABOUT

Brother of William Buchanan of This City Prominent in English Dispatches.

James Buchanan, brother of William Buchanan of this city is one of the wealthy English residents of London much talked about at present owing to his recent gift of fifty thousand dollars to the Reform Tariff League of the United Kingdom. The following dispatch from London has an interesting description of this prominent whiskey manufacturer and his life in London:

Just what connection there is between whiskey and tariff reform is not quite clear, but evidently there is some. James Buchanan, one of the whiskey multi-millionaires of England, has just given $50,000 to the tariff reform league to mark the election of Bonar Law to the membership of the unionist party. Buchanan is one of the "characters" of London, where the firm of which he is head has its offices. His "Black and White" brandy has made his name a household one throughout the world, especially in this country where a glass of whiskey and soda is an almost indispensable feature of true British hospitality.

Hitherto, Buchanan has been known outside of business, chiefly as a racer of horses on the flat and he has been decidedly successful from a financial viewpoint. He is distinctly "horsey" in appearance, seldom dresses in anything but rather loud checked and plaid and a hat topped with a tall feather. If you didn't happen to know him when you passed him in the street you would most likely mistake him for one of the fast disappearing drivers of London's horse buses.

He was born in Canada, like Bonar Law, but he belongs to a Perthshire family. He still has large interests in Canada despite his residence in England, and with Lord Aberdeen, Lord Bute and Lord Innes, he is partner in a 20,000 acre in British Columbia, where he raises cattle, fruit and wheat.

MILK CONDENSING PLANT IS ASSURED AT FOOTVILLE NOW

Officers and Directors Named at Meeting Wednesday—Have Raised $57,000—Will Select Site at Once and Start Building.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Footville, Dec. 8.—At a meeting of farmers and business men interested in the Footville condensed milk factory on Wednesday officers and directors were elected as follows: James Murphy, president; Henry Drafahl, vice-president; S. W. Snyder, 2nd vice-president; Morton R. Fish, secretary; W. S. Silverthorn, treasurer.

Directors: James Murphy, Henry Drafahl, S. W. Snyder, Henry Long, W. D. Howell, August Albrecht, W. J. Owen, M. A. Fox, Martin R. Fish.

$57,000 have already been raised among the farmers and business men in this vicinity and the success of the venture is now assured. The company is capitalized at $100,000 and a controlling part of the stock will be held by the Footville people. Funds are still being raised and farmers for miles around are enthusiastic over the proposition liberally pledging support.

The master mechanic is expected within a few days to select a site for the factory from the three which are now suggested and should the weather remain favorable work on the building will begin at once. The structure will be modern and up to date in every respect with the best machinery and equipment. The country tributary to Footville for a distance of six and eight miles in all directions will supply milk and the enterprise to be a great boon to the dairy business in Southern Wisconsin.

KNIGHTS AND LADIES ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Dr. W. H. McGuire Re-Elected Protector.—Eight New Members Taken Into Order Last Night.

At their regular meeting held last evening the Knights and Ladies of Honor elected the following officers for the coming term: Protector.—Dr. W. H. McGuire (re-elected). Past Protector.—Mary M. Murray. Vice Protector.—W. D. Shockley. Recording Secretary.—Grace Green (re-elected). Treasurer.—Winifred H. Davies (re-elected). Guide.—Mae Dempsey (re-elected). Guardian.—Clara E. Hall. Sentinel.—H. H. Hammond. Trustees.—W. L. Lovelace, Charles L. Hall, Louis McMahon.

Eight new members were taken into the Order, which brings the membership list well past seventy-five, and ten others were elected to membership to be initiated at the next meeting. Following the election of officers the members enjoyed a box social until a late hour. The fancy prices which were received for some of the boxes displayed splendid judgment on the part of the bidders, and a nice sum was netted the lodge.

Protector McGuire has been highly honored by the Supreme Lodge at Indianapolis, Ind., by his recent appointment as major of the Uniform Rank Knights and Ladies of Honor of the state of Wisconsin, and he has already made arrangements for the organization of a drill team in the local order. Arrangements are also being made for the organization of a basketball team and practice will begin soon, and the team expects to be in shape within a short time to compete with local basketball teams.

In January the supreme officers will be present to install the newly elected officers, and preparations are being made to hold a banquet at that time.

LOCAL PRIZES AID TO SALE OF STAMPS

Over Forty Prizes Arranged for School Children Who Will Push Sale of Christmas Seals.

Miss Helen Vignam, local manager of the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals, announced today that over prizes would be given to the children who engage in the work of selling stamps this year.

Also classifications have been made for the children in the grades, high school, parochial school, and the newboys, the boys and girls each having a separate classification. The youngsters are hard at work now under the assurance that the prizes offered will be worth working for. The merchants have given many valuable articles to be used in the prize list.

COMMUNICATION.
To the Editor:—The Gazette of last evening you say "the cow and not the trust is responsible for the high price of butter." Now to my way of figuring the cow has nothing to do with it. Five months ago the Elgin Creamery Company (the butter trust) made contracts with farmers all among their chain of creameries in Iowa, Wisconsin, and Illinois for milk at so much per hundred pounds; $1.05 I believe for six months. Milk costs the Elgin trust no more now than it did five months ago, still the price of butter is nearly doubled and the farmer gets no more out of it. Perhaps, as the Gazette said the other day as it is coming on holiday time the good people feel more liberal and the butter trust is taking advantage of it to take on the price. Take the enormous tax off and the price of butter will come down and not injure the farmer a penny. A friend of the cow.

Died From Neglect Of Teeth

I just read of the death of a Wisconsin man from an ulcerated tooth. Pure neglect is the usual cause of these troubles.

Folks let their teeth go and think everything is all right just because there is no pain in their teeth.

Tooth often decays for two years before penetrating deeply enough to cause pain.

The remedy is simply to go to a dentist and have the decay stopped "while they are small." I will examine you free of charge.

PAPER BAG COOKERY ATTRACTED CROWDS AT DEMONSTRATION

Complete Menus Prepared and Cooked Before the Eyes of the Spectators and Sampled by Those Present.

Paper bag cookery, as exemplified at the Gazette free demonstration, has shown the possibilities of this mode of preparing food. The interest of the many ladies present Thursday afternoon and evening and this afternoon, and the considerable number of men who also watched all the seasons, accords with the idea that readers of the Gazette are interested in all new ideas.

Mrs. Marshment cooked two complete meals Thursday and again this afternoon. The evening she will repeat the afternoon demonstration, the lecture starting at seven-thirty instead of seven as previously announced.

So many ladies requested Mrs. Marshment for the recipe for the bread she made, it is printed below with the recipes for today's lesson. The afternoon will start at two o'clock as it has Thursday and today, but the evening (Continued on page 7.)

Pipes Not Made From the Brier.
French brier pipes are not made from the roots of the brier, but from the root of a white heath which attains a considerable size in the south of France, where it is sedulously cultivated for pipe-making purposes. The name is derived from the French bryere, the dialect form of which is briere, meaning heath.

FINE PRESENTATION CANTATA OF "RUTH"

Given by Choral Union and Junior Choir of Congregational Church—
Mrs. Zoe Pearl Park to Leave.

A very creditable rendering of Gail's pastoral Cantata of Ruth was given last evening by the Choral Union and Junior Choir of the Congregational church in the church auditorium. The soloists assisting in the production were Mrs. Charles Mohr, soprano, as Ruth; Mrs. Zoe Pearl Park, contralto, as Naomi; Mrs. John Dixon, contralto, as Orpah; and Robert Hall, bass, as Boaz. The cantata was Miss Ada Pond.

The cantata is the well known bible story of Ruth's devotion to her mother-in-law and her husband's death. The music and the different voices well balanced in volume and clear in tone. Zoe Pearl Park carried her part with her usual correctness and diction. The voice of Mrs. Charles Mohr was singularly sweet in tone and her enunciation excellent. Mrs. John Dixon's voice was at its best, displaying mellowness and clearness throughout. Robert Hall, bass, made an excellent impression, his notes being full and displaying wide range.

The cantata was of especial interest as it is the last, but one, to be given by the able conductor of the Choral Union and choir of the Congregational church, Mrs. Zoe Pearl Park. She leaves early in the coming year for Chicago where she has accepted a position as musical director of the First Congregational church. On the evening of December 28, Mrs. Park will give a farewell concert. The Congregational church of this city and its musical circles very much regret to lose her capable direction and services as a soloist.

NO BETTER WAY TO BREAK A BAD COLD.

Surely cures the most severe cold and ends all misery in just a few hours.

The most effective and harmless way to cure the Grippe or break a severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach or limbs, is a dose of Pope's Cold Compound every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken.

You will distinctly feel the cold breaking and all gripe symptoms going after the very first dose. It promptly relieves the most insupportable neuralgia, pain, headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic aching.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine made anywhere else in the world, which will cure your cold or end gripe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or had after-effects as a 25 cent package of Pope's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

After three years' research we have conclusively demonstrated that quinine is not effective in the treatment of colds or gripe.

GIFT SUGGESTIONS

By ROSE TERRILL.

Bandeaux for the hair still continue in favor and are more elaborate than ever. A handsome ribbon of rather soft satin is always an acceptable gift. It may be tied in a big bow to be worn at one side or very low at the neck. But as a rule, for dress affairs a more elaborate band is chosen. Gifts to young girls or debutantes may be fashioned at home inexpensively and still have the charm of novelty. The maline bow shown is fashioned very simply of a yard and half of maline net. Enough is allowed to pass about the head and the rest is fashioned into three roses so as to give the effect of a fluffy pompadour. This is caught securely with a stitch on the underside and side of a very beautiful bandeau is the result.

The bands of velvet or ribbon with ribbon roses or daisies are still favorites. The roses have been made so often that almost all dress-makers know how to make them, but the daisies are rather newer.

Use No. 2 satin ribbon. For large daisies cut the ribbon in three inch pieces and tie a soft knot in the center, bringing the two ends together and sewing them to the bandeau. Finish the center with heads of yellow. One large daisy and three or four smaller ones make a pretty cluster at the side of the head. Sew the petals out flat and straight, but make them close enough to overlap each other.

Baby blue ribbon in two shades in very much smaller petals make a forget-me-not effect that is very pretty. The centers should be of pink and white crystal beads and only five petals is required for each flower.

A wide band of gold tissue, finished at the edge with the crystal beads in either white or colors and with no bow of any sort is very lovely.

A butterfly made of coral beads strung on uncovered wire and fastened securely to a band body made like the balls over a form of wire covered with white silk is a favorite hair ornament. In fact every variety of butterfly from black sequins to diamonds, seem to have flown into favor.

PAPER BAG COOKING IS PRACTICAL

Mrs. Marshment, The Gazette Demonstrator Gave Instructive Lessons Yesterday to Many Ladies—Shows How Economy Enters Into the Operation, and Demonstrates Extra Value to the Food Thus Cooked

(5) To remove food, rip open bag.

That the Union Cookery Paper Bag cooking is not a fad but a practical and economical mode of preparing food, can be vouched for by the many interested women who listened to and watched Mrs. Marshment, the Gazette demonstrator, prepare an entire meal yesterday afternoon and evening. With fine Union Cookery Bags containing fish, hamburger roast, onions, carrots, potatoes and berry rollie pollie, all cooking with one burner on the big gas range and with no odor, the evidence of economy and practicability of the bag cooking idea, was clearly shown.

Ladies tasted the good things and doubtless today the grocers have supplied many families with the bags for use in the preparation of today's meals.

Ladies are interested and so are the men, they are all anxious to learn and this opportunity to see an expert at work and to hear her explanations is taken advantage of by most everybody. The Gazette is glad to be able to supply this information on a subject of such interest. Tonight and tomorrow Mrs. Marshment will prepare a complete meal, explaining all the points as she goes along—her menus and receipts are printed on another page. Every interested person is invited. Admission by coupon only. Clip the coupon on another page for tomorrow's demonstration to be held in the L. R. Treat building near Library, next to Kent flats.

"I suppose you are pretty familiar with the country from New York out to your suburban home?"

"Yes, I know every inch of the advertisements."

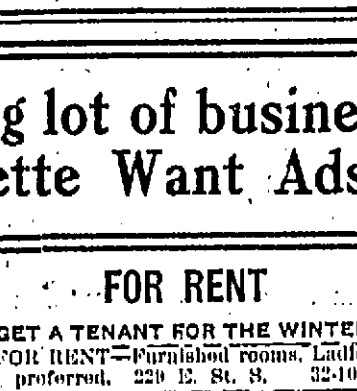

"Was your master straight when he came home?"

"Oh, yes, ma'am, he was straight. I was afraid he'd fall over backwards."

"What do you think you will make out of my daughter's talent?"

"About three dollars a lesson if the piano lasts."

"How is it done?"

"Hello," said the eminent statesman, speaking rather severely to his private secretary. "Hello, it has been rather more than a week now since I have said something really brilliant. Are you aware of that?"

"Yes, yes," stammered the hireling.

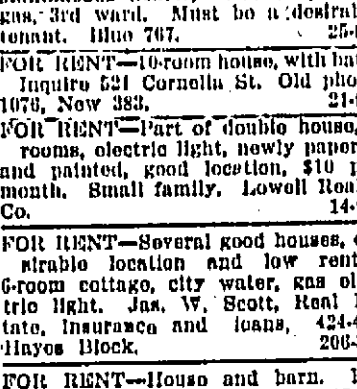

"I'll give you three days more," continued the statesman, assuming his well-known attitude in which the right hand is thrust into the front of the shirt, as though to bring forth an important document or to scratch a hidden chigger bite—and if I haven't uttered something exceedingly intellectual or startlingly new by that time, I shall have to employ a new press agent."

"He knew the game."

"Now, Archie," asked the schoolmistress, dishing out the virtue of politeness, "if you were seated in a train car, every seat of which was occupied, and a lady entered, what would you do?"

"Pretend I was asleep," was the prompt reply.—The Bits.

"One Alternative."

"Why do you wish to go on the stage?" inquired the manager.

"I want to get a millionaire husband."

"Well, the stage is overcrowded just now. We have a trained nurse."

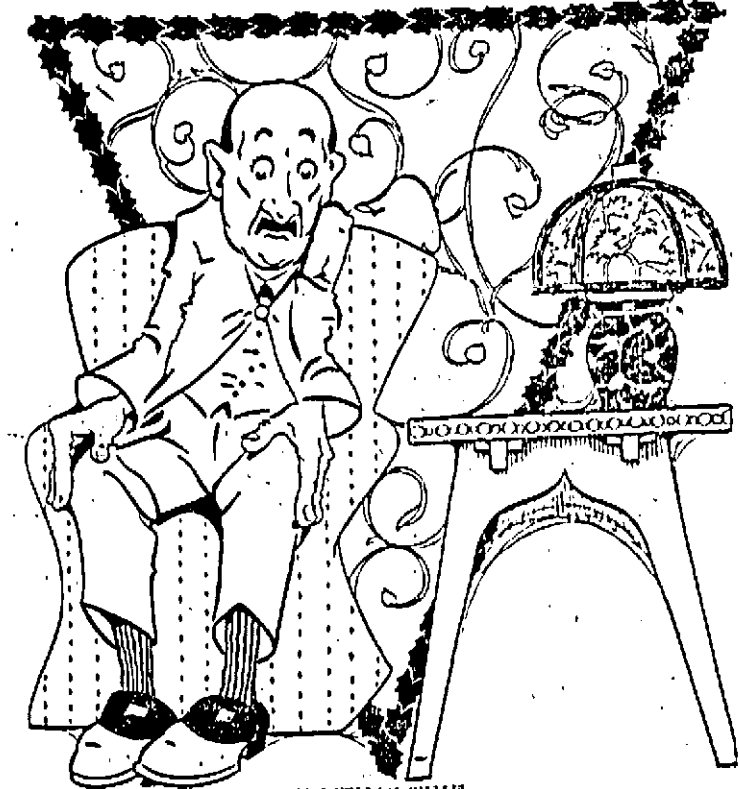

"Somewhat Unusual."

"Peculiar chap, very. His wife is born in his house."

"What's peculiar about that?"

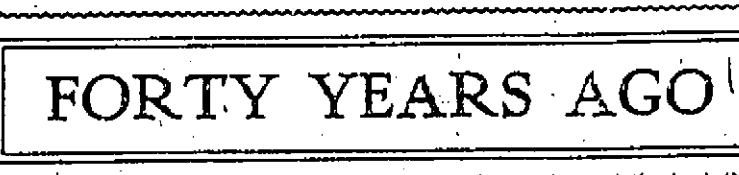

"He admits it."

Forty Years Ago

The Janesville Gazette, Dec. 8, 1871.

The train from the west which left Omaha on Friday, Dec. 1, left Janesville Station yesterday morning, but had not arrived at Janesville last night, although the track is reported free of obstructions.

Terrible suffering is existing among the poorer classes of Janesville, in consequence of the early advent of winter. Very little ship building is going on and other work is so scarce that many workmen are leaving for the United States.

The Wisconsin river is completely frozen over at Portage, the channel having closed up on Wednesday evening, the 2nd ult.

The Milwaukee News of the 7th contains the following in relation to the missing fleet: "On Tuesday the 'Paranoid' came into port all covered with ice. The tug 'Blissmark' secured the coast in search of more of the belated fleet and found the bark 'Notson,' which was brought safely to port. Yesterday the 'Red, White and Blue' was brought safely in, but grounded in the Milwaukee river, as her center board could not be gotten up. The tug 'Blissmark' has been very active in keeping watch for vessels in distress, and great credit is due her captain, David Cochran, for his energy and promptness. Last evening the 'Blissmark' sailed for a cruise along the south shore, and if no vessels are found in difficulty she will keep on to Manitowish.

The thermometer registered six degrees above zero this morning and has been rising all day.

The Rev. Francis W. Hakonson will be installed as pastor of the Baptist church of this city on the 20th inst. An attempt was made to burglarize the work room of Smith and Bestwick's custom department last night, but the rogues broke their false key in the lock and were forced to abandon operations. A number of partially made garments were in the room, and had the burglars succeeded in entering they would have been well paid for the trouble. Hereafter those clothes will be locked up in a safe place nights.

transformed into a cold-blooded desperado being elected speaker. He also begins to suffer from atrophy of the ear drums and defective eyesight. It is not infrequently happens that after a man has been speaker for a while his eyes get so poor that he can't recognize a single member of the opposition. Sometimes the speaker becomes so deaf in the ear abutting on the minority side that he can't hear the will, small voice or a shrill demand for the previous question. Although overwhelmed by the cares of state, the speaker finds time for a little light reading, such as Robert's Rules of Order, with appendix by J. Cannon. Sometimes the speaker cuts out the appendix and adds a neat little glossary of his own. When he wrote his book, Mr. Roberts never suspected that it would be filled with home-made recipes for unlettered men with low retreating foreheads and adjustable spelling, but should we complain? The speaker draws a large salary, in monthly capsules, which he disposes in rent and other light amusement. He generally has plenty of ready money and seldom has to reverse his cuffs. The speaker is a kind man, and occasionally, for election purposes, allows some member from a close district to do a little pro tem for him, especially when a tie vote may be seen easily coming his way over adjacent horizon and threatening the perpetuity of our institutions.

It's No Use.

He was telling her about a book he had just read.

"The absolute sincerity and directness of the author," he said, "are above all praise. I don't know when I've read a book that seemed so helpful, so uplifting, so purely inspiring."

She had been regarding him with a rapt countenance. Now she spoke.

"George," she said, "I have just thought of a way to trim my winter hat!"

REPUBLICAN LEADERS PREPARE FOR NATIONAL CAMPAIGN.

On December 12th the republican national committee in charge of the 1912 convention and campaign will meet to arrange the date of convention and place of holding same.

Senator Crane of Massachusetts and Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania are among two of the leading factors in the republican machinery. In view of Senator Crane's present position as chief advisor to President Taft, the recent report circulated to the effect that he has offered his support to Roosevelt has particular significance and has been heralded with untold joy by the progressive element of the republican party.

The KINGDOM of SLENDER SWORDS

by HALLIE ERMINIE RIVES

Copyright, 1910, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

Ware's fingers flattened on the stem of his glass of yellow champagne as the artist said: "We are in the throes of a new sensation at present, Mr. Ware; a case of love at first sight."

"It's really a lot rarer than the novelists make out, you know. We are all tremendously interested."

"But he knows her," said Voynich. "The other evening in Tokyo, Mr. Ware, Miss Fairfax mentioned having met you. She is from Virginia, I think."

Ware bowed. "She is very good to remember me," he said. "And so Miss Fairfax has met her father in Japan?"

"Well, rather," said the artist. "I hear nothing is even that she'll accept him inside a fortnight."

Ware slipped his liquor with a drop of relief. Evidently, the world of Tokyo had not yet discovered that the new arrival's first name was that of his yacht.

"Daunt doesn't play according to Hoyle," grumbled Voynich. "She's a guest of his own chief, and he ought to give the other half a chance. His lives in the embassy compound, too, confound him! He monopolized her outrageously at the review the other day. He's an American 'trust' I shall challenge him."

"The voice of Commander De Kay broke in:

"Coppery hair and pearly brown eyes, a skin like a snowdrift caught blushing and a mouth like the smile of a red flower—a girl that Romney might have loved, slim and young and thoroughbred—there you have the capital sentence of the secretary of the American embassy."

Down the middle of the street came running a boy. His hands were full of what looked like small blue hand-bills. De Kay got up quickly. "It's the Kokumai Nishimura," he said. "He's the Kokumai Nishimura." He batted down the steps, stopped the runner and returned with one of the blue sheets.

"Nothing special," he informed them. "Pleas in Wall Street are smothering the records. That looks like a clear political horizon, in spite of what the wisecracks have been saying. This visit of the squadron will prove a useful pointer, no doubt, to reduce international infatuation—the officers being shown the sights of the capital, and the celebrations to come off as per schedule, including the naval minister's ball tomorrow night. By the way," he added, turning to Ware, "I arranged for an invitation for you. It's probably at the hotel in Tokyo now, awaiting your arrival."

A little gleam came to Ware's eyes. The threads were in his hands, and this suited his plan. "Thanks," he said, "you're very kind, commander. I shall see the subject of your rhapsody, then, before the judge puts on his black cap."

"Ah, but you'll have no chance," laughed the baroness. "Trust a woman's eyes."

"Unless his aeroglyph takes a turn," said the American girl renegely. "There's always a chance for a tragedy there!"

They rose to depart.

Ware drank his black coffee alone on the terrace. Daunt a secretary of embassy! A rival less experienced than he, full of youth's enthusiasms; a young Romeo wooing from the garden of officialdom! It had been a handful of days against his own round year, a few meetings at most to offset his long and constant plan. And as a result the thing he had seen through the car window. He shut his teeth. He would have taken bitter toll of that kiss.

As he lit his cigar one of the hotel boys came to him. On his arrival Ware had sent him to Phil's bungalow on the bluff with a note.

"Ware-San not at home," he said. "Where is he?"

"No Yokohama now. He go Tokyo yesterday. Stay one week."

"Is he at the hotel there?"

"Boy say no hotel. House have got."

"What is the address?"

"Boy no must tell. No any letter send Tokyo club."

Ware's composure had been fiercely shaken that night, and this obstacle in his path pricked him to the point of exasperation. With impatience he threw away his cigar and walked out through the cool, brilliant evening.

He left the band and threaded the housebo-dori—the "main street." Midway of its length was a jeweler's shop window with a beautiful display of jewel-jade. In it was hung a sign which he read with a very smile.

"English Spoken; American Understood."

Ware entered and handed the Japanese clerk his broken cigar case. At his elbow a clerk was packing a jade bracelet into a tiny box for delivery. He wrapped and addressed it painstakingly with a little brush:

Esquire Philip Ware,
Kasumiga-ten Cho, 34,
Tokyo.

In the street Ware smiled grimly as he entered the address in his notebook. He had always believed in Phil's luck. Tomorrow he would find Phil and gain further enlightenment—incidentally on the matter of jade bracelets. His mouth set in contemptuous lines as he walked back to the hotel.

CHAPTER XIX
THE WOMAN OF SORE.

AND as to the foreigner named Philip Ware, that is all you know?"

"That is all, Ishida-San," Huru answered.

They stood in the cryptomeria shadows of Kojimazaka hill, from which he had stepped to her side as she came from the embassy gate. It was dark, for the moon was not yet risen, and the evening was very still.

Such an ambush by her lover, unjustified, would have been a dire affront to the girl's rigid Japanese code of decorum. That he had seen Phil greet her at Mukojima the evening before had shamed her pride, and in speaking of it tonight he had seemed at first to lay a rude finger on her maiden dignity. But who had seen in an instant that his errand was inspired by neither anger nor jealousy. He had touched at once her instinct of the moment.

Her quick, clever brain and finely attuned perception read what lay beneath his questions. The great European expert whom Japan herself employed and the young foreigner who had pursued her—were they then, objects of question to that wonderful, many-sided governmental machine, which was lifting Japan into the front rank of modern nations? Although she had never shared the disfavor with which her father viewed her lover's duties, who had wondered at his present apparently mental position. Tonight she was gaining a quick glimpse beneath the surface. He told her nothing of the details which, though he could not himself have built a tangle of indelible from them, had one by one embraced the two men. But the agitation she felt in his words had sent a quick thrill through her, had tapped that deep rich well of feeling, the Yamato Damashii, which she felt a sudden passionate wish that she, though a woman, might pour herself into the mighty stream of effort, though she be but a whirling cherry petal in the great wind of her nation's destiny. He had come to her for any shred of information that might add to his knowledge of the youth who was now Hironaka's satellite. But she had been able to tell him nothing.

She bowed to his ceremonious farewell, a slim, misty figure that stood listening to his rapid footsteps till they died in the darkness. She walked up the dim slope with lagging pace. She was thinking deeply.

At the top of the hill, opposite the huge, rice-studded gate of the princess' compound, lay the lane on which the chapel stood. As she turned into the darker shade she was aware of two pedestrians coming toward her, of a voice which she recognized with a shiver of apprehension. The sentry box by the great gate was empty, and she stepped into it.

Dr. Bersonin and Phil paused at the turning, while the latter lit a cigar from a match which he struck on the sentry box. Huru's heart was in her throat, but her dark kimono-blend with the wood and the flash that showed her both faces blinded his eyes.

"See!" said the doctor. A mile away from the low lying darkness of Hibiya park a stream of fireworks shot to the zenith, to explode silently in clusters of colored balls. "The first rocket in honor of the squadron!"

"Tomorrow the admiral has an imperial audience," said Phil, "and the superior officers are to be decorated."

"So!" said the other in a low, malignant voice. "And I, who have designed Japan's turrets and cheapened her arsenal processes, I may not wear the Cordon and Star of the Rising Sun!" In the darkness a smile of malice crossed his face. "We shall see if she will hold her head so high then! Whether war follow or not, it will damn her in the eyes of the nations. She will not recover her prestige in twenty years."

They passed on down the dark slope, out of sight and hearing of the girl crouched in a corner of the sentry box. At the foot of the hill Bersonin said:

"It will take some days longer to finish my work, but the ships will stay for a fortnight. Tomorrow night I will mark the triangle on the roof of the bungalow, so that the angle of the tripod will be exact. There must be no bungling. You can go by an earlier train, so we shall not be seen together, and I shall return here in time for the ball."

There was a fire in Huru's bosom as she went on along the thorn hedges. She had heard every word, and she would not allow herself to fix them in her mind. What they had been talking of was the secret that lay beneath Ishida's questions. For an instant she had almost touched it. A feeling of deep pride rose in her. Japan was not sleeping; it watched. And in the path of the plotting danger stood her lover.

These two men hated Japan. War? They had used the word. Japan did not fear war. And not that been proved? Her heart swelled. But the thing they were planning was her country's enduring humiliation, "whether war follow or not." She felt a sudden deep horror. Could such plots be and their God, her God now, not blast them with his thunder? And one of these men had spoken with her, touched her, kissed her! She struck herself repeatedly and hard on the lips.

The chapel was brilliantly lighted, and the rose window threw beautiful tints, like shavings of many colored gauze, over the shrubbery. She entered and slipped into a seat near the door. The lesson was being read. It was from the Old Testament, the modern, somewhat colloquial translation.

"This-after, Samson a Sorek Valley woman called Delilah did love."

Then the Princess of the Philippines the woman-to-upon, saying:

As for you, by sweet discourse prevail that where his great power is or by what means overcoming to bind and torture him we may be able."

It seemed to her suddenly that a great wind filled all the chapel and that the words sat on it. Slowly her face whitened till it was the hue of death.

She might find out the secret!

And Delilah to Samson said: Where your great power is or by what means overcoming to bind and torture you may be able, this no tell."

She began to tremble in every limb. She a samurai's daughter? She thought of her father, aged and broken, grieving that he had had no son in the war. She had been but a useless girl child, left to plant paper prayers at the crossroads for the brave men who longed to achieve a glorious death. If she did this thing would it not be for Japan?

"And he at last to his mind completely opened."

The woman's knees upon Samson did sleep and she called a man who of his head the seven locks cut off * * * and the power of him was lost."

If she did, would it avail? She remembered Phil's eyes on her face the day on the sands at Kamikura—their smoldering, reckless glow. She remembered the bamboo lane. In those darkened kisses her woman's instinct had divined the force of the attraction which exhaled over him, had felt it with contempt and a self-humiliation that burned her like an acid. To use that for her purpose? But she was a Christian. From the Christian God's "Thou shalt not" there was no appeal.

She could no longer be a Christian. But the old gods of her people shining from their golden altars—the ancient deities who looked forever down above the sound of prayer—they would smile upon her.

For all save one sleep came early that evening to the house in the Street-of-Prayer-to-the-Gods. In her little room Huru lay as still as a sleeping flower.

Nehemiah and His Enemies, Neh. vi, Golden Text—The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? Ps. cxviii:1.

(1.) Verses 1-2—When God is blessing us with great success in our work how does that generally affect those who are doing the same kind of work?

(2.) Which are the worst enemies and why, those who outwardly declare their hostility, or those who pretend to be friends and are secretly working for our injury?

(3.) Why instead of being annoyed, did not Sanballat and his company admire and praise Nehemiah for his wonderful success?

(4.) In a race it is fair for each to try to win; but what is the character of the one who puts out his foot and trips up his chief competitor?

(5.) What would you say were the real motives of Sanballat, and his friends, in wanting to prevent the building of the wall of Jerusalem?

(6.) When men have for years neglected, or failed to do a needed work, how do they generally feel when others do that work?

(7.) Verse 3—How would you characterize the answer of Nehemiah to the invitation to a conference with Sanballat?

(8.) What may be expected of business or professional men who neglect their calling, and spend much time in playing ball or other pastimes?

(9.) Verses 4-8—Why were they so anxious to have this outside conference with Nehemiah?

(10.) If a false report gets circulated about a man, as is doing a good work, how much if any notice should he take of it?

(11.) What probably would have been the result if Nehemiah had gone to this conference in order to protect his good name?

(12.) Why do people so often impugn the motives of those who are succeeding in doing a good work?

(13.) How should we treat those who oppose us, or speak evil of us?

(14.) What arguments did or could Sanballat use to justify the accusation which he said people were "making against" Nehemiah?

(15.) Is slander of good people generally pure fabrication, or is it a perversion of actual facts, as in this case?

(16.) Verse 9—There is a natural tendency for us to be more or less afraid of such devilish and persistent enemies as these; what therefore is our best method to keep up our courage and succeed?

(17.) Verses 10-14—What would have happened if Nehemiah had been tempted to fear, and had shut himself up in the temple, as he was advised?

(18.) In what class would you place the sin of moral cowardice?

(19.) Which are the more vile and why, bad men in a pious garb, or out-and-out sinners? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(20.) How did Nehemiah discern the hypocrisy of Shemiah?

(21.) Verses 15-18—How long did it take them to complete the wall?

(22.) What qualities did Nehemiah display that are still essential for success?

Source of Poison Dangers.

The action of foods and liquors on their receptacles many produce deadly poisons. Acid fruits cooked in copper or zinc pots are a particular source of danger. A man who was taken ill in the hunting field with symptoms of mineral poisoning learned that the fine old brandy he carried in his back pocket had dissolved some of the copper in the sterling silver flask.

A Finisher.

He—Was it a very bad play, then?
She—First Night—Bad! Why, my dear boy, even the lights went out at the end of the second act.—London Tatler.

Hard One on Hostler.

William Hostler, one of William Randolph Hearst's right-hand men, is not quite as bald as he can be, but, at that, he is not displaying what might be called a "mop of hair." And to what is left of a once superb and splendid suit of dark-brown hair, Hostler each morning devotes much affectionate care and painstaking devotion. No luxurious locks were ever combed by My Lady Fair with greater skill than is lavished by Hostler on those few strands which have withstood the disastrous onslaught of time. Each particular hair has its station. One day Hostler was playing with a little girl. To be exact, her age was seven—the time of curiosity and other frankness. Suddenly she paused in her chatter and gazed with wide eyes at Hostler's head. "Oh!" she said, in awe-struck tone, "Mr. Hostler, what is those black strings on your head?"—Popular Magazine.

No Soft Winter.

"It's going to be a hard winter," said Mr. Growcher. "I hope so," replied the cheery citizen. "Let it freeze up and stay that way. I have no use for one of those mushy, thawing winters."

Helps to Feed Japanese.

Most abundant of all seaweeds are the kelps, distributed along every coast in the world. From these the Japanese prepare many food products, known under the generic name kombu.

HAVOC

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

Mr. Oppenheim says of HAVOC: "It is a story of international intrigue founded on a plot related to me in a Parisian cafe by a secret service spy of one of the great powers." The Boston Globe says: "Havoc is a masterly blending of romance and international intrigue," while in the opinion of the New York World "Mr. Oppenheim proves anew that he is a master of intrigue and mystery."

It is a tale full of complications, surprises and exciting incidents. The beautiful heroine and her gallant lover escape plot after plot by a hair's breadth.

PIMPY? WELL, DON'T BE!

People Notice It. Drive Them Off With Olive Tablets.

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pimples will vanish after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Nothing ever cleansed the blood, the bowels and the liver like Olive Tablets.

Olive Tablets are the only successful substitute for calomel; there's never any sickness or pain after taking them.

Olive Tablets do all that calomel does and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with "a dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are made of pure vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result.

Try them. Take one nightly for a week. Then look at yourself in the glass and see how you feel.

"Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

10c and 25c per box.

SHORT CUT TO SUCCESS IS BY SUBSCRIPTION PATH

Every New Subscription Should Be In By
Saturday, December 9, 1911

Less than three weeks remain in the Gazette's great prize campaign. Two weeks of good work on your part will win that elegant Overland for you. Why should you let this opportunity pass? The opportunity of a lifetime to get an elegant machine. Set your mark for the Overland car and do not let up until you have won it.

No one knows what reserve the different candidates have, but there are several candidates in the districts who would be very much surprised to know how well they stand for the grand prize.

Should the campaign close tonight perhaps there would be the difference of a year's subscription for the first prize among several candidates in any of the districts.

If you want to get ahead, and get a good reward, too, your friends and get their subscriptions.

Don't wait for others to get the votes but start today, and make up for any time that you may have lost waiting for others to vote for you. People like to help those that help themselves.

The candidates are beginning to realize that the difference of a few thousand votes is not a very large margin and are not losing heart by any means. A race is being held until the goal is reached, and there is always time for the last competitor to win out.

Remember there are thirteen valuable prizes and there are to be no losers.

A great many people do not understand, and for their satisfaction we wish to say that anyone starting to take the paper since the campaign started will always be considered a new subscriber during the life of the campaign and votes given accordingly. If you start the paper now and pay something in advance and wish to pay more later on during the campaign you will receive the same number of votes as a new subscriber.

The Gazette's handsome prizes are going to be won by the active, ambitious ladies. It is an easy matter for a lady to go out and pick up a few yearly subscriptions to The Gazette, much easier than many of the ladies. The ambitious girls who do a little work along this line are the ones that are sure to come out successful in the end.

Income active and gain your share of the subscriptions to be had only for the asking.

People who take some other paper can pay the candidate and have the paper started at any date. Help is an instance in Wednesday's mail:

Mr. _____ of Milton, Wis., to commence March 1, 1912, at the expiration of the daily.

Nature's Beauty Hidden.
Nature, as we all know, is never at home to the mere sightseer or idle spectator. Stare at her straight in the face, and you will see nothing; it is only the casual side glance which is rewarded by the sight of anything new or substantial.—Henry C. Merwin.

Not Worth Five.
"Marry me?" said the duke. "But, duke," responded the helmsman, "I feel somewhat committed to the count." "Have no regrets on that score. I gave the count a five-dollar note and bought him off."

Boarders Take Risks.
If a boarding-house keeper in Austria having a leased house sublets rooms to boarders and then falls to pay the rent of the house the lessor may levy for payment against everything in the house, regardless of the ownership thereof.

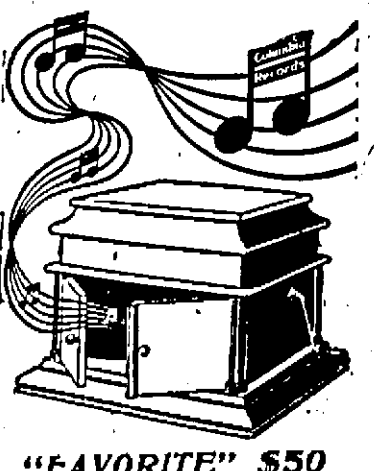

What Men Escape.
Of course men have their little worries and troubles, but they don't have to go to bed at night after night with their faces smeared with complexion ointment.—Galveston News.

No Excitement.
"A man doesn't seem to take any pleasure in writing letters to a woman after he has married her," said Mrs. Gloomer. "No," replied Miss Cayenne; "he seems to lose all interest when there is no possibility of his letters being read to a jury."

A New Discovery.
One of the sensations of the twentieth century is Meritol Rheumatism Powder. A boon to every sufferer. The best known remedy for rheumatism in all its forms. Ask those who have tried it. Reliable Drug Co.

Something Better

Don't Buy a Hornless Talking Machine Until You Hear and Have Examined a Columbia

The exclusive features in the Columbia hornless $25 and $35 instruments is that the tone chamber arrangement is built on exactly the same principle as that employed in our $200 Grafonola. The tone chamber (see per illustration) is continuous, unobstructed and gradually increases in size, thus allowing the tone to grow until its full power and natural qualities are obtained.

Do Not Buy a Hornless Talking Machine Until You Have Examined the Tone Chamber. It must be continuous and uninterrupted to give that full, round, natural tone. This is only one of the many exclusive features in a Columbia.
